Armoires provide plenty of concealed storage, but their bulk can overwhelm small rooms, as can etageres filled with collectibles. The solution: tall, sleek casegoods with drawers and doors on top and open bases below.

Designed by John Black for Council, #2004-064ME cabinet has an upper case with two bifold doors that open to reveal a painted, mirrored interior with ample storage space, and a lower case with two felt-lined drawers and a shelf banded to extend beyond the flared legs. The cabinet is available with Macassar ebony (shown) or rosewood veneer doors. It stands 48 inches wide by 19 inches deep by 65 inches tall. CIRCLE 286
