

Master Class | Break the Rules!

DOMESTIC BLISS

RETHINK
COLOR

▲ BLACK AND BLUE TABOO?
We think the combo looks stylish in Zoffany's Nureyev wallpaper in Midnight and in the Spot table from Council's Brownstone collection.

"There's an English decorating adage 'Blue and green must not be seen without a color in between.' But I break that rule all the time. I love blue and green." PETER DUNHAM

"The story I've heard is that pink only became connected with girls when Marshall Field started wrapping gifts in blue for boys and pink for girls. (He thought pink looked lovely with a girl's complexion.) Ever since, it has been absorbed into our culture and instilled into minds as inviolable. Not to say a man's room should be bubble gum, but a few slips of pink in a larger context should not be frightening." THOMAS JAYNE

"People say orange and turquoise don't mix, but we blend them all the time. We mix colors that are supposed to be yucky together." JOEL CHEN

"Clashing color combinations—yellow and purple, red and blue, coral and turquoise—always make a bold statement." HUTTON WILKINSON

Council

Modern masters of fine furnishings.

2004-035 Side Table

As seen in House & Garden magazine